Presentation Ceremony of HKQAA Hong Kong Registration – Recycling Services Pilot Programme cum Kickoff Ceremony of HKQAA Hong Kong Registration – Eco-friendly Series

(8 October 2015, Hong Kong) Hong Kong Quality Assurance Agency (“HKQAA”) today held the Presentation Ceremony for the “HKQAA Hong Kong Registration – Recycling Services” Pilot Program, presenting 61 registration and “companion” marks to 43 business entities at Hong Kong Science Park. Mr Wong Kam Sing, JP, Secretary for the Environment, joined the ceremony as the officiating guest to kick off another new initiative, the “HKQAA Hong Kong Registration – Eco-friendly Series”.

Over 40 Business Entities Participate to Facilitate Recycling

HKQAA kicked off the “HKQAA Hong Kong Registration – Recycling Services” in May this year, to encourage organisations to dispose of, collect and treat waste properly. It aims to promote environmental protection and occupational health and safety practices within the recycling industry. “We intend to promote appropriate maintenance of downstream records of recyclable material, promote the clean recycling concept, and motivate the public and business community to support source separation and the recycling of waste,” Ir Dr Hon Lo Wai Kwok, Chairman of HKQAA said.

There has been an overwhelming response from industry since the kickoff of the initiative. 43 business entities have joined the pilot program, obtaining 61 registration and “companion” marks. 18 organisations have registered as both “Waste Collectors” and “Waste Recyclers”. Six have become “Waste Collectors” and 19 have joined as “Companions” (please refer to Appendix 1 for the List of Registered Organisations and “Companions”). The registered organisations and “Companions” were recognised in today’s ceremony. Representatives from participating organisations and industry leaders shared good practice in environmental protection, and talked about development prospects, at the ceremony.

Adopt Eco-friendly Practices, Add Value to Brands

To further promote green industries, HKQAA today also kicked off a new initiative, the “HKQAA Hong Kong Registration – Eco-friendly Series”, to encourage organisations to integrate environmental aspects into the design, production, delivery, use and disposal of their products and services, so as to improve environmental performance. The initiative encourages organisations’ contribution to promoting environmental protection, based on traceable evidence that they have done so. It aims to enhance industry and public support for eco-friendly products and services.

This registration service is intended for the manufacturers, importers, traders, retailers and service providers of environmentally-friendly products. It encourages organisations to commit to the environment at different stages of the product life cycle by registering their products or services in the following categories: “Eco-friendly Material”, “Eco-friendly Production”, “Eco-friendly Product” or “Eco-friendly Service”. Organisations which commit to supporting eco-friendly products can join as “Companions”. Participating organisations will receive a registration or “companion” mark for promotional purposes.

“In addition to boosting an organisation’s reputation and adding value to its brand, we believe the new initiatives will help the public identify registered organisations and ‘Companions’ using the prominent marks, so that they can make wise consumption choices,” said Dr Michael Lam, CEO of HKQAA.
